Planning YOUR Perennial Garden

The number of perennials which may be grown in your garden is limitless, so far as variety is concerned. How many you grow and what varieties you grow will depend entirely upon your interest in perennials and your likes and dislikes for coloring, etc.

The present trend in perennial growing is to grow a number of different sorts in informal beds or along the shrub border and include only a few which are classed as rare plants. Perennials, or plants which live for more than one year, are very essential on the grounds of anyone who likes color all through the different seasons. They may be planted in beds, in wide borders, in front of shrubs, around a pool, and the lower growing or dwarf sorts are widely used for rock garden planting. They may be planted in rows in a small garden for cutting purposes. They may be used singly but it is recommended that they be planted in clumps or groups of from three to twelve plants of a kind, as a mass of color is much more effective.

Most perennials need a sunny location although some varieties will grow in semi-shade. Perennials should be kept well away from the roots of trees as they rob them of food and moisture. Be sure that the bed or ground that you are going to plant perennials in is well drained, as perennials will not stand a lot of water remaining upon the surface of the ground for long periods of time. The soil should be made loose to a depth of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  to 2 feet, with a plentiful supply of fertilizer thoroughly mixed into the ground when it is spaded up. If the soil is clay that becomes extremely hard during the summer season it would be well to throw out the top six or eight inches of soil and mix with this a liberal amount of peat moss or other commercial humus before putting it back into the bed and proceeding with the planting. Perennials like a porous soil in which they can throw out their roots. The soil in which perennials are planted should be kept rich at all times. Many of the plants are shallow rooted and are not able to send out their roots in search of new food supply.

Perennials may be planted in the fall as well as in the spring with certain exceptions. Iris should be planted any time during early spring or fall. Peonies are best planted in September or April. Oriental Poppies are dormant in late August and should be transplanted at that time. Otherwise perennials can be planted as other nursery stock, either spring or fall. When the plants are received from the nursery, unpack and plant them at once if possible. Those which cannot be planted at once should be heeled in moist soil and kept well watered, both roots and tops.

In planting a perennial planting, lay out the space you have available for them on a piece of paper and spot in the taller growing sorts for background. Then select the plants for the border and jot them on your layout. Fill in with the medium tall growing sorts in the center of the bed. Select and plant for color display so that you do not have two kinds of perennials with the same color of blossoms beside each other. Color variation in a perennial bed is essential.

Many types of perennials will do better if frequently transplanted, that is, about every third year. This is especially true of the Coreopsis, Gaillardias, Shasta Daisies and other varieties which have dense foliage just above the ground. The plants should be removed from the bed and torn into several divisions, and these divisions replanted, the same as new plants. Iris also does better if transplanted occasionally.

There are only a few simple rules necessary to the successful growing of perennials and may be summed up as follows:

- Good, well drained, rich soil in a sunny location.
- Plant with crown or eye of plant just barely below ground level.
- Plenty of cultivation of beds to keep the soil loose and mellow.
- Keep the beds thoroughly soaked during dry weather.
- Frequent fertilization to produce best growth and bloom.
- Keep blooms cut off as they begin to fade and the blooming season of all sorts of perennials will be greatly lengthened.
- A few wood ashes worked into the soil around Delphiniums is advisable for best growth and bloom.
- In climatic and soil conditions where the ground heaves with winter freezing and thawing the beds should be thoroughly mulched in late fall.
- If these simple rules are followed and proper care is exercised in selecting the varieties for your plantings, there is no reason why the average gardener should not be a successful grower of perennials and enjoy their beauty all through the season.

They are magnificent this spring. The color range is unusual; that is, so many different shades of red and pink and such long stems. Some have a thirty-inch stem.

So often when one buys a collection the colors are all the same.

Richards Gardens, Plainwell, Mich.

Gentlemen: I'm more than pleased with the quality and size of the plants you sent me recently. Needless to say, I know where to get my perennials from now on. I should have bought some Baby Breath (Gypsophila) plants, and surely would have, had I realized the size, which could have been set right out in the open this fall. Thought I might have had to pot them and grow for a while. May get some other things this fall.—Jack N. Gordon.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR PLANTS
IMMEDIATELY
UPON ARRIVAL

For shipping, our plants are packed in peat with Whale-hide waterproof paper. When you unpack them, if you are not ready to plant them in their permanent places, and wish to hold them for two or three days, it is a good idea to pour a small quantity of water down through the top of the package so that this peat can be moistened. After this treatment, your plants should keep fresh for several days. If, however, they are not to be planted within two or three days, it is best to take them out of the package and heel them in until such time as you are ready to plant them where they are to grow. These plants are large enough so that it is not necessary to put them in cold frames or in pots until they are ready to be planted in their permanent places.

Do not plant them with the crown covered too deeply, as they are liable to smother and you will have considerable losses. If your ground is fertile and kept well watered, you will be sure to have good results with these strong seedlings, and every plant should give a good account of itself, producing considerable blooms the first year.

HOW TO GROW BEAUTIFUL DELPHINIUMS SUCCESSFULLY

Delphinium are easy to grow. They should have a good rich soil as they are known as gross feeders. Cow manure is the best. If this is not obtainable, get a small quantity of peat for each plant. This should be supplemented with a small quantity of lime to offset the acidity of the peat, as they like an alkaline soil. As a commercial fertilizer, we recommend Vigoro, or a similar brand, to be fed in small quantity every two weeks. This should be worked into the soil and well watered.

Delphinium is sometimes subject to the fungus diseases. However, it is not difficult to eliminate these diseases if taken in time. When the foliage starts, dust or spray with Bordeaux mixture. This should be done at frequent intervals to take care of the new growth of the foliage.

In the event that Delphinium have been grown on the same soil in years previous, or you have experienced trouble with these fungus diseases, it is well to treat the soil with a solution of formaldehyde. The directions for using this disinfectant are usually found on the wrapper. Also, be sure that all old foliage has been carefully cleaned from the bed and burned.

In planting Delphinium, the soil should be opened with a trowel, the roots carefully spread out and soil well firmed around them. It is a very good idea to put a handful of peat in the opening right around the roots. Also, be careful not to cover the crown with more than one-half inch of soil. After the plant has come in full bloom, it may be cut off close to the ground, then new shoots will start and you will have a very nice second crop in a short time.

PEONIES

GROWERS OF PEONIES FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS—

We want to say just a word about the quality of Richards' Peonies. We send out, as always, nice clean roots, three to five eye divisions. All from one, two and three year old clumps. You will find no clubby stock in our peonies and we guarantee them true to name.

We start digging September 1st, but unless you specify a shipping date they will not be shipped until after September 15th, as after that time the eyes are better and stronger and it is really better to wait until that time, unless you must have them before.

Where ten of a kind are ordered, an extra root will be added.

We are giving the rating on the peonies and you will note that there are many in this list that rate nine or better and only in one or two instances are they below eight. We are very proud of this list and know you will be pleased with the offerings we make this year.

OUR GUARANTEE

We exercise great care in keeping our varieties true to name and will replace any variety that proves untrue two years from date of sale.

HOW TO PLANT PEONIES

Peonies are heavy feeders and should be planted in soil which has been thoroughly prepared by deep spading and the addition of well rotted manure or good commercial fertilizer.

Peonies should be planted with eyes NOT MORE THAN TWO INCHES below surface of the soil.

Most of the trouble that gardeners experience in not having their peonies bloom comes from planting too deep.

Have holes generously large to accommodate the roots. Sift in finely pulverized soil around roots until nearly covered, and then fill hole with water and allow to settle. This eliminates any air pockets. Fill in balance of earth to proper depth as shown in drawing and pack firmly.

Peonies planted in this manner will seldom fail to grow and bloom the following year.

Well rotted manure applied as a mulch in late fall and then worked into the soil the following spring will help promote luxuriant growth and blooms.

Gentlemen: I received my first order from you today and was much surprised and pleased. They were the finest Phlox plants I ever received and were well packed and looked as though they had just been dug. Thank you.—Mrs. Chas. W. Burton.

Sirs: I have been gardening for forty years, but I do not think I ever saw as fine plants as the Dianthus you sent me a short time ago. They came from Michigan to Georgia as fresh as possible, and notwithstanding the extreme heat, all are making a most satisfactory growth. I expect to order more when I have the ground ready.

Dear Sirs: My shipment of plants arrived in fine shape and were put in their permanent homes yesterday. You folks certainly send out splendid seedlings and you are most liberal in your count, for which I am duly grateful. This fall I shall be in the market for the following peonies, and if you stock them I would appreciate a copy of your price list: E. B. Browning, Francis Willard, Mrs. Edward Harding, La-France, Mary Woodbury, Shaylor, Milton Hill, Raoul Dessert, Rosa Bon Heur, and Ball O' Cotton.—Haslett B. Leigh.
